

Just For The Record - The Quest For Two-Tone

The book that the whole carp world has been waiting for is just one way to describe Just For The Record The Quest for Two-Tone by Lee Jackson. Although Lee has contributed to many other books and magazines in the past and also produced Carp Clinic in 2001, this is Lees first proper carp fishing book. Not only is it a book that documents the rise of the British Record venue Conningbrook, but its also a book about the anglers who have tackled this venue since it first came to light. Just For The Record follows Lees own personal story as he sets about conquering the Brook as it is referred to, and follows his seven-year campaign, ending in the capture of Two-Tone... Conningbrooks biggest resident and a new British Record. Its a story of blood, sweat and tears and a journey into the mind of one of Britains best loved and most respected carp anglers. There are some 22 chapters in total. Besides Lees own personal story there are several guest chapters, written by some of the biggest names in carp fishing. The likes of Paul Forward, Lee Watson, Rod Killick, Ian Brown, Pete Regan and Simon Bater, plus several others tell their own stories about this incredible venue and the carp that swim there... making this the book to read.
