Excerpt from Report on Fish Breeding Operations, Vol. 2: In the Dominion of Canada 1889 Sir, - I beg to submit the annual report on fish-breeding operations in the Dominion of Canada for the year 1880, in which will be given the particular transactions which relate to each of the hatcheries, especially as to the number of fish-eggs which have been laid down in each nursery, and the young fish of various species which have been bred and turned out of the several establishments during the past year; a summary of the work performed at, the wants required for, and the general standing of each nursery will be included. There will also be found appended to this general report, the individual reports of the several officers in charge of their respective institutions in the several Provinces. In these, fuller details will be given, descriptive of the varied operations of capturing parent fish, hatching the ova, and distributing the several species of young fish in the waters of the various sections of the country. The output of fry during the past year has been under that of former years, by reason of the reduced supplies of ova that we obtained in the season of 1888. Great success, however, has attended the collecting of eggs during the autumn just closed. The gross number amounting to upwards of 136,000,000, or an increase of some 37,000,000 over the previous year. Taking the work as a whole the years operations are of the most satisfactory character, and judging from the numerous applications which are being continually made by individuals, and public bodies throughout almost every section of the country, for fry bred at these nurseries to stock waters which are failing, or have become depleted of their former supplies of fish, but one conclusion can be arrived at, namely: - the growing popularity of the work of fish culture and the undoubted benefits which have been, and are to be derived from a judicious application of it as a supplementary aid to the natural method of producing from the waters of the country more plentiful supplies of fish-food for the inhabitants generally, and for enlarging commercial traffic in fish. It may not be considered as inappropriate to briefly refer here, to the views entertained by two of the adjoining countries regarding the importance for extending in the one, -and introducing into the other, the work of fish culture, with a view to improve their former extensive, but now somewhat declining fisheries. The Federal Government of the United States, and the Government of our own sister colony of Newfoundland are both making strenuous efforts to foster the fishing industry of their separate countries. The former by enlarging its fish cultural operations which have been already so successfully carried on by the United States Fish Commission at Washington, and its friendly co-operation with individual State Fish Commissioners for the erection of Federal Hatcheries and the taking over, and working some of the fish nurseries which were built by these individual States; thus relieving them from carrying on an industry which the Federal Government considers to be of such general benefit to the whole Union, that the expenditure in erecting these establishments and maintaining them should be borne from federal grants alone.
